Hope is dreams deferred.

Man has many emotions, feelings, thoughts, and ideals which form his personality, and make him into the person he is. He uses these emotions to say what he wants; to communicate with the rest of the world.

A man is a conglomerate of a physical being as well as a spiritual and emotional one. He feels, he needs, he wants. There is a countless number of things man wants during his lifetime. The spectrum of these wants is extremely wide. A child wants a new toy, a man wants a raise, and a young girl wants a date. They are all similar. People desiring something is the common bond.

Man has always wanted. As far back as civilization goes, man has tried to get things he couldn't have. With these efforts rose jealousy, depression, cunning, and evil. Not every manner used by man to acquire what he wanted was completely legitimate, and so many methods were tried.

With all man's wants and needs came his hopes; those thoughts which have sustained him through thick and thin. It was these hopes that were the backbone of every move he made — they guided him and told him what to do and how to do it. Regardless of the predicament he was in, man had hope. Sustaining hope. If things were rough, he would hope for better. If things were good, he would hope for more.

The present is upon us. The future is right around the corner. It is the year 1971. Our technology is running rampant, and we are caught in a sea of problems. The war in Vietnam is still continuing to take its bloody toll upon us. We are poisoning our atmosphere and our waters. We have much building, both mental and physical, to do in our country. Now. Our most beautiful features are our people, and we are torturing them senselessly.

The hope of today, like the hope of yesterday, still functions on the premise of the "grass is always greener." But it is different in that people today are crying out their needs, hopes, and dreams. They are trying to show the world what has to be done before it is too late.

We are thinking people with minds and a beautiful history of learning and knowledge. We can be rational and we can be smart. We can also be violent, cruel, and malicious. With our history of knowledge comes also our history of wars. Destroy. Kill. Murder. People do not want this. They want the best life they can have. We are getting caught up in a very vicious cycle. It must be stopped.

Since hope influences everything we do, it is necessary to take this hope, combine it, and transform it to action. The people of this world deserve a saner, more peaceful way to live. There is no question about it.

Our hope should be our salvation, no matter what the future brings. We should use it as a constructive tool in which to dig out of everything we have created.

Individually we're hopeful dreamers. Collectively we're a strong society who could make the most out of our assets and eliminate our problems. Work through your hope. Try for your world.

Where there's life, there's hope. Please.

One only hope my heart can cheer —
The hope to meet again.
— George Linley

NOLENE

I have always been told,
Whenever failing try again
Is faith so easy to keep?

There was a time when there were no gods. Heaven and Earth alone existed. They were the first parents, and from their union sprang the gigantic Titans. For ages the Titans ruled the world. But at last, the gods, who were the children of the Titans, rebelled and overthrew them. Then it was that Zeus became supreme ruler of the universe and his wife and sister, Hera, became queen of heaven.

Now as yet there were no men on earth, and none of the animals seemed worthy to rule the rest. So the gods decided to make still another kind of creature. One of the Titans, Prometheus — whose name means Forethought — was chosen for the task.

Down from the heaven the Titan sped. He took clay and mixed it with water, kneaded it, and shaped it in the likeness of the gods. He made his creature stand upright, for he wanted man to look up at the stars and not down on the earth, like the animals. Then Prometheus thought:

"What gifts shall I give this work of my hands to make him superior to the rest of creation?"

Unfortunately, his brother Epimetheus — which means Afterthought — had already given all the great gifts to the animals. Strength and courage, cunning and speed — he had distributed them all. Wings, claws, horns, scales, shelly covering — nothing was left for man.

Then quick witted Prometheus thought of fire. Oh, great and wonderful gift! "With fire," the Titan thought, "man can make weapons and subdue the beasts, forge tools, plow the earth, and master the arts. What matter that my creature has neither fur nor feathers, scales, nor shell? Fire will warm his dwelling, and he need fear neither rain nor snow nor the wild north wind."

Back to heaven Prometheus sped, lit his torch at the chariot of the sun, brought down fire to man and went away rejoicing.

But up on high Olympus, great Zeus frowned as he sat with the gods feasting on nectar and ambrosia. For Zeus was ever jealous of his power.

"This creature that looks to heaven is truly more than a match for the beasts," he thought. "Indeed, he is almost a match for the gods. But I will curb his ill-got power!!"

Straightway Zeus made woman, lovely as a goddess. All the immortals bestowed gifts upon her to make her yet more captivating. And they called her Pandora — Gift-of-all. When she was finished, Zeus himself bore the dazzling creature to the Titans.

"Beware!" Prometheus cautioned his brothers. "I fear the gifts of wily Zeus. He bears me ill will because of the fire I stole from heaven and brought down to mankind."But Epimetheus was enchanted with Pandora and took her to his heart and home.

Now in that home Epimetheus had a jar in which he kept certain gifts he had not distributed among the animals when he had made them. He took great pains to tell Pandora she must leave this jar alone. "On no account must you open it," he warned her.

But, above all things else, the gods had endowed Pandora with curiosity. No sooner was she alone than she sped to the forbidden jar.

"Surely it will do no harm if I just peek in and see what is there," thought she.

She slipped off the cover. And there flew out a host of evil plagues and all manner of disease, envy, spite, revenge — and scattered themselves far and wide. Pandora clapped on the lid. But it was too late. The jar was all but empty. Only hope had remained — hope which never leaves mankind.

STUDENT ORGANIZATION

Electing officials in your Student Organization is one of the most important decisions made in your High School career. It is these people who will represent your school and build it to what it should be — an institution which supports and works for you — the student.

When an S.O. is weak, either because of non-support or lack of production, the school too, becomes weak. There is no binding force to remind the students that they are all one.

At this time, Cardozo's S.O. is somehow lacking. It can be working to achieve unity in the school, both politically and socially, but without the necessary support it will go nowhere. When a function is organized and has to be cancelled for lack of participation, that is a flaw. When an S.O. congress meeting is called and less than one-quarter of the representatives show up, that too, is a flaw. Something is wrong, something must change.

A school is a structured organization. Its goal is to educate. Education, however, takes many forms. Using and working with student government is part of your total education. Trying to improve your school is also part of your education. Work with your S.O., accept what is yours. With learning there is life and with life there is everything.

Activities Planned

by VICKI DAVIS

"Once you have school spirit, it will carry over to most things," insists Kent Atwell, president of the Student Organization. Kent hopes to tackle the problem of student apathy through a new constitution that insures student rights and reflects students' ideas, as well as a planned program of activities that will appeal to everyone.

Constitution in Works

The new constitution will include the Bill of Rights of the Students which was approved over the summer. The constitution will be written by the S.O., the S.T.P., representatives and one elected delegate from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes respectively. After a constitution is prepared, it will be voted on by the student body.

Activities Planned

The planned activities, which Kent says "will offer something for everybody," will include a Folk Concert, tentatively scheduled for Nov. 10, a dance the night of Dec. 4, and a film festival on Oct. 28 and 29. Admission for the festival will be $1.50 a night. Among the fare offered will be horror films, W. C. Fields, and the Marx Brothers. Kent also trying to organize a girls track team.

Will be Political

Kent feels that "Definitely, the S.O. will take political stands this year." He requested "that any political groups in the school come and talk to me so that the S.O. will know what's going on and will be able to organize the students." He feels that "the students have an obligation to make their feelings known." In reference to the Leadership Class, Kent hopes it will include "one of every viewpoint," and will be able to bring all opinions together in order to openly arrive at ultimate goals. He hopes it will be a free discussion group and he promises to have at least one member of the Executive Council of the S.O. present at each meeting.

Kent is aware of the problems that a new school such as Cardozo has and is also aware of the times. As he states it, "I'd like to make this job easier for next year's president."

Teams Need Money

S.O. State of Affairs Affects All

by KAREN DAINER
and ROBIN ROSENBERG

Our present organization is presently faced with the likelihood of collapse. The deterioration could be prevented by alleviating the debts the school has incurred. This situation could be relieved if student tins, as well as to preside over the election of representatives. In many official sections no one has even mentioned the fact that S.O. dues should be paid. And, if the subject is brought up no one is assigned the task of collecting them. These problems have in part been caused by the ress system lity is that as reached ons, that S.O. ome an unany. Besides nts think the h politically

If there is one thing that h brought the students together, ith been our teams. For a while la year, all students were united in su port of their basketball team. Wit out the S.O. all of the following wou be nonexistent: basketball, baseba soccer, volleyball, tennis, bowlir gymnastics, swimming, trac fencing and golf.

SING!

Do you know that 1 out of every students belongs to SING? And these sing members realize that the S.O. fails, so will sing? O viously not, because there is greater percentage of students w belong to SING, than are membe of the S.O. SING seems worthwh enough to be upheld as a traditic This will be virtually impossit without the support of the S.

PRETZELS! and other good thin come from the S.O. store. But, wit out S.O. subsidies, the doors of roo 159 will be bolted forever.

Although many do not realiz it, the S.O. is the backbone of a student activities that take pla outside the classroom. To be com pletely effective it requires tot student support.

Disappointed in Students

Mr. Gershon finds the student indifference to the S.O. discouraging and remembers when "students joined their student organizations just because they were students that wanted to support their school and teams." As for aims of the S.O., Mr. Gershon said that "the students will have to make the S.O. It's up to them to see that it works."

dent body has long been its apathy, a point well past. But if the stu- more so this year, blame, indeed, should go to v towards with the

True, there is no P.A. system but published newsletters with all the "happenings", problems, and plans in the S.O. Why were the students never notified by the S.O. as to financial difficulties? The S.O. executives should not wait for other school organs to take the initiative. Perhaps new students would have joined the S.O. had they known anything about it.

Lack of Plans

Aside from that, the S.O. is doing nothing. What happened to last year's constitution, or the new one supposedly in the works? Why are d-raising events planned, only to eriously disappear? And how many times must a student go to the S.O. office for the same thing because he repeatedly finds it office being closed during A.M. or P.M. official. If the officers cannot be there, then it is the duty of Mr. Gershon, S.O. advisor, to be there.

To effectively represent the students, for it is the Student Organization, the Executive Council must be aware of how the student body feels on the many problems facing it. Before the S.O. executives can go to the administration with an idea, they must first make sure that they are representing more than just themselves. To achieve this, student polls should be conducted at regular intervals or whenever something of a pertinent nature comes up.

It is time for the students to demand of the S.O. that which they are due, and for the S.O. to begin living up to their responsibilities

In a school as large as Cardozo, there is the expected lack of communication. The Verdict, our school newspaper, tries to lessen the gap between the students of our school. It is printed once a month by and for the students of Cardozo in hope of perhaps getting rid of the existing communication barrier. Whether or not the students who give up their valuable time and effort are succeeding is a question that can only be answered by the students of Cardozo — the students who have used their copies of The Verdict for anything from a sheet of note paper to a bookcover. Only they can answer this question but first they must open up the paper and read.

The student teacher parents council was established as an advisory body consisting of five parents, five members of the student body. The councils primary task, has been to establish a greater rapport between the students the faculty and the community at large. It is felt that this rapport is necessary if the school is to confront and deal with the problems pertaining to it.

The STP: has attempted to get more students involved in school activities, has become involved with the problem of extortions, and has attempted to alleviate the problem. The STP also organized a forum through the history department, whereby students may voice their complaints and suggestions.

Black Student Union

The B.S.U. is the voice of the Black students. It was formed in Cardozo so that the Black students could express themselves, concerning the present school structure.

In order to confine themselves to specific topics, the B.S.U. 10 Point Program was written. The 10 Point Program relates to all students in New York State. Cardozo's B.S.U. is endeavoring to establish the coalitions with many Black oriented organizations.

The B.S.U. publishes a newspaper called "The Political Educator." It deals with Black poetry, Black literature, community news, school problems and social events. They are also helping to establish a Black library in the Hollis area of Queens.

The B.S.U. works with the Leadership class for improvements in the school. They have tutorial programs and rap sessions — trying to establish a Basic understanding among students. The rap sessions are part of the new Peer Group Program. The B.S.U. has also gotten speakers representing other organizations such as C.O.R.E., NAACP, Young Lords and the Panther Party to come to Cardozo.

Sing '71

The Senior class reigned supreme when Cardozo presented its second annual Sing. The Seniors, directed by Michael L. Cohen and Jon Lonoff, performed a burlesque style take-off on Romeo and Juliet called "A Night With Bill Shakespeare." They were well received by standing room only audiences and won the competition. Also participating in the 1971 edition of Sing were the Junior and Sophomore classes. The Juniors presented a spoof on motion pictures called "Can Darryl F. Zanuck Ever Forget Junior Sing and Find True Happiness." The Sophomore class performed a story of Women's Liberation entitled "There's No Business Like Snow Business." Sing was a tremendous success and a joy for all to see.

Leadership Class

With the advent of the 1970-71 school term, the leadership class was incorporated into the curriculum. The class run by Mr. Barry Oster is a forum where both faculty and students discuss problems which they consider critical to the operation of the school. Through the discussion of these problems it is hoped that programs will be initiated to alleviate them.

The leadership class has established a sophomore forum, whereby students on late session may for the first time have a voice in the operation of the school. Discussions pertaining to curriculum have also been initiated. Students of the leadership class have met with chairmen and teachers of the various departments to voice the ideas and complaints about the curriculum, as well as possible solutions to their complaints. It is hoped that one of the ramifications of these meetings will be a more imaginative curriculum for the 1971-72 school term.

Mr. Oster hopes that the leadership class will stimulate increased communications between the student body the faculty and the community in order to create the atmosphere of cooperation necessary to ameliorate our problems. As a result of the creation of the leadership class, the onus of responsibility in initiating change now rests with the students.

Draft Counseling

When a student becomes a senior his body may remain in Cardozo but his mind is already in college. At about this time, he enters the College Office, never to leave again ... He sees shelves of catalogs with headings such as "Quinnipac to Mr. Aloysius." He also sees papers and books strewn around and other students just as mystified as himself. Last year, out of all this confusion, 94% of the senior class went on to some form of college.

The Budget Cut

Imagine a school where students can join no extra-curricular activities, where there is no newspaper, no yearbook, no plays, no clubs, and no Sing, because of lack of funds, where there are no teams, because there isn't even enough money for uniforms, where the center can not be open because schools must close immediately after the official school day ends, where no music, art or any other electives can be offered, and no one can take anything except the bare minimum required courses, where if your teacher is absent your class must be split up into other classes, possibly not even the same subject, where anything that you, the student, wants in order to enhance his educational life to something beyond books, tests, and studying cannot be attained.

This would be the fate of the educational system in the city of New York if the cuts of the budget for the coming fiscal year were to go into effect.

Although all of the above mentioned conditions would not immediately occur, it is quite safe to assume that once the city and state begins to tighten their purse strings, it would not be likely that they would easily let up.

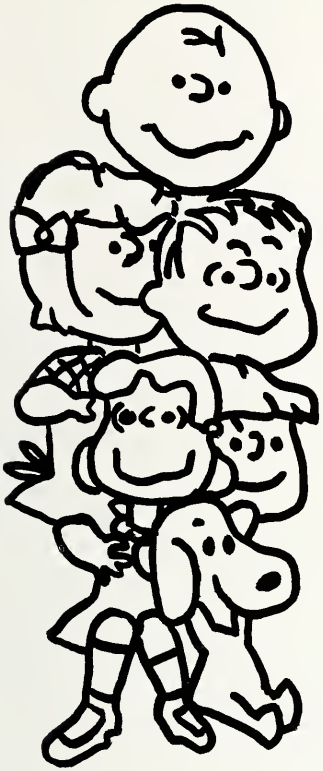
Besides the elimination of many school activities, the State University System has also been forced to curtail the enrollment of their Fall 1971 class. Though more people applied for this coming freshman year, the class size has been greatly reduced. In the future, the tuition and room and board prices will rise in order to cover costs.

Education, however, though one of the ofcal points of the cutback, is not the only area affected. Up to 90,000 workers in a diverse group of the city's services could possibly lose their jobs.

Recently, many thousands of city residents staged a demonstration at Albany to illustrate their disatisfaction about the budget cut. In addition to many people having their jobs eliminated, many services such as day care and addiction centers will be closed. The city's parks will be closed more hours per day because of lack of personnel.

Unless the state and city can restore the funds it has planned on cutting, New York will begin to see a severe deterioration of much that it is now famous for offering.

"You're A Good Man Charlie Brown"



"You know, I don't know if you'll understand this or not, but sometimes, even when I'm feeling very low, I'll see some little thing that will somehow renew my faith. Just something like that leaf, for instance — clinging to its tree in spite of wind and storm. You know, that makes me think that courage and tenacity are about the greatest values that a man can have. Suddenly my old confidence is back and I know things aren't half as bad as I make them out to be. Suddenly I know that with the strength of his convictions as man can move mountains, and I can proceed with full confidence in the basic goodness of my fellow man. I know that now. I know it."

FACULTY

From The Principal

Hope is the cement which binds together the past, present and future. Hope is the ray of light which has served mankind as a beacon for thousands of years, beckoning forward. Without hope, the human race would have been beaten down, a long time ago.

To us, living in the 70s, life seems gloomy and foreboding. An unpopular war, racial injustice, too rapid a technological advance that deprives men and women of their identity, ecological lag, and frustration everywhere are symptoms of erosion in our society.

Hope then remains as the only emotion that gives us the strength to battle for a better world. To you of the class of '71, young, enthusiastic and idealistic, we give the gage of battle for a better world. Generations before have lived with problems, but hope has enabled them to solve them. Hope that we can end wars and create a better society is the responsibility of all of us, but particularly you, and you in your turn will pass on the message to the next generation.

We wish you well.

Soccer

With the advent of a new soccer season, followers of the Queens "A" Division invariably picked Cardozo to have a dismal season, and ultimately be relegated to the "B" Division for the subsequent year. This perhaps could have been substantiated by the fact that no other schools in Cardozo's immediate vicinity play "A" Division soccer. However, Mr. Tatarian's squad surprised everyone by finishing in a tie for third with an 8-5-1 won lost league record, and a 12-6-1 over-all record. This year's team was, for the most part, a new one. Co-captains Ricky Sposta and Ed Beaugris were the only returning starters from the previous year's team. The team's success can be attributed to various factors. For the most part, defense was outstanding. Mario Treglia, an all-Queens honorable mention goalie, recorded 4 shutouts. The fullbacks were led by Camille Hostin, Oswald Dwyer, and George Tenet. Both Camille and Oswald were members of a senior all star team, which played against an all star team from Philadelphia. The Halfbacks were led by Halit Uyger, Terrance Walcott, and Dervant Montique who was on second team all-Queens. Utility halfback-fullback Gabriel Ceron came through well in clutch situations. The front line was composed of right wing Claude Baptiste, inside right Ed Beaugris who was first team all-Queens, inside left Mike Hall, and left wing Ricky Sposta. Anthony King, Sako Mourad, Cliff Langweiller and Dwight Richards proved to be of invaluable aid in giving the regulars needed rest during the game. In addition, they turned in strong performances on the field.

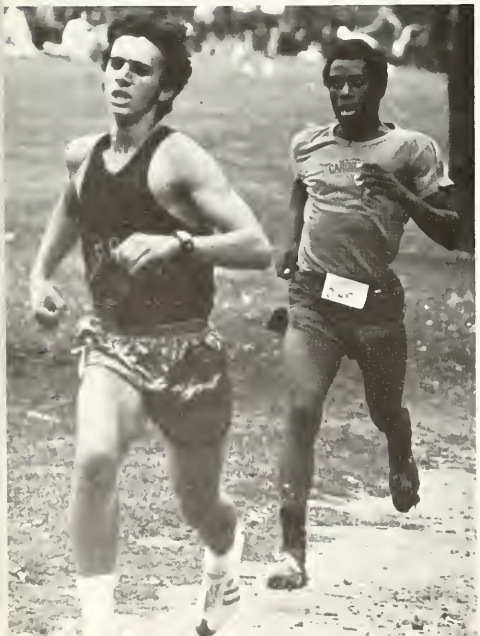
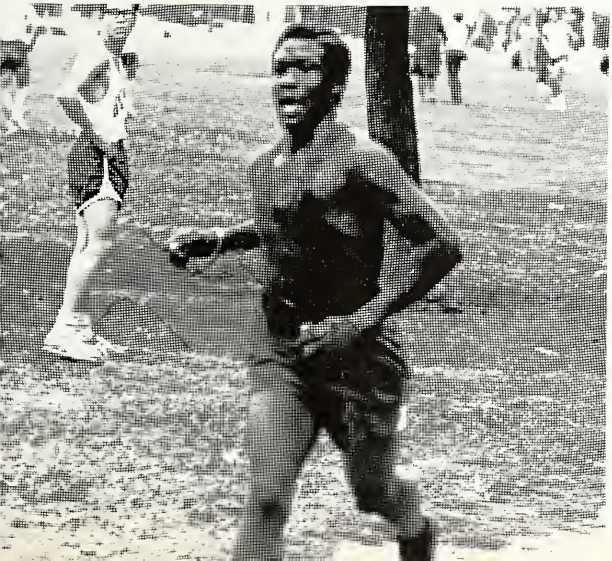
Last year, Steve Beck, a senior at Cardozo High School passed away. A member of the basketball team for two years, and a member of the baseball team for three years until his untimely death, he always gave one hundred percent. He was a dedicated young man whether he was on the basketball court, the baseball field or in school. His presence and efforts were a boost to his teammates morale. Always striving to improve himself, he received the greatest respect and admiration from his colleagues and coaches. Most of all, Steve Beck was a considerate and warm human being.

Track



Winners Never Quit
Quitters Never Win



Cardozo's cross country team in its second year of competition continued on a winning tread. Three victories and two losses were recorded by this varsity team. Once again, Captain Donald Allen and Co-Captain Curtis Smalls played major roles along with Robert Love, Stan Martin, Joseph Bartner, and Dan Rachlin.

In indoor competition, the team developed slowly in the early meets. In the Queens Indoor Champs, Don Allen placed high in the standings in the two mile run, and Paul Scales in the 60 yard dash. Allen and Scales also ran well in the All City Mayors Meet held in February. In the New York City Indoor Champs, six members of the team, placed within the top five positions in their events. Outstanding performances were exhibited by Eddie King, Donn Gerald, and Bob Madison.

Coach Joe Sansone has developed the team into a productive segment of Cardozo sports. Honorable mention goes to graduates Donald Allen, Curtis Smalls, Ronald Ambrose, and Paul Scales for their outstanding ability exhibited as members of the team, and their well developed athletic ability.

Operating under a severe height disadvantage to their opponents, the Judges compiled a 6-8 won-lost record, finishing fourth in their division. This factor plus the lack of experience of the majority of the team forced the coach, Al Matican to employ a tight defense and a quick offensive attack. The season started off slowly as the team lost its two first games. These two were an indication of the type of season it was to be for Cardozo — one where teamwork and a balanced offensive and defensive attack were not always present simultaneously.

Henry Nixon and Willie Davis, the only two regulars to return from last year, led the team both offensively and defensively. Nixon produced a 16.9 point average for the season, and Davis who quarterbacked the team was the high man in assists. However this combination in the backcourt was not always productive, so Jimmie Bryan switched off team quarterback, with Nixon moving to a forward position. After adjusting to his position at center, Ollie Savage turned in consistent performances off the boards, although offensively he did not produce much. As for the balance of the team, point production, rebounding and clutch shooting were rarely apparent.

The major difficulty encountered by the team was not the lack of experience or lack of talent. It was the lack of consistency, both on offense and defense. When the offense had trouble getting started, the defense was tight. However, when the offense got rolling, the defense would collapse, and vice-versa. These inconsistencies forced the team into committing too many turnover, which the opposition capitalized on and forced the Judges into playing catch up ball.

With much of the team returning next year, the Judges should make their presence felt in PSAL competition. However, the big men will have to be found so that the height difference will not be so great. Thus, the competition will be equalized at least on that level.

The fencing team concluded their season with a 4-4 record, finishing third in their division, and just missing a playoff spot. Capt. Ira Sanders, captured the PSAL Individual Fencing Championship. This is Mr. Cohen's last year as fencing coach. As coach, he has seen two of his fencers in consecutive years capture the Individual title, the only coach in the PSAL to have done so. He will continue to give his assistance to the new team and coach, as the four top fencers will also be leaving. The team wishes to express its thanks for his friendship and leadership.

IN MEMORY OF DENISE GUROWITZ

To someone we all knew and loved, whose ambition in life was to write. This is a part of her she leaves behind.

"As I sit and watch the rain
Wonder if I will regain the confidence that I once knew as someone sweet and nice as you.
I often sit and wonder why,
Your desire to say good-bye
When memories soon descend
The long and lonely nite will end."

(This is the response from her classmates)
"There are no words,
There is sympathy,
There is grief,
There is understanding,
There are memories
And prayers, and love,
But there are no words . . .!"
